Is Skating Becoming, Look?

The young person with the excellent balance has on a sure-enough skating suit, made of heavy wool Jersey in Joffre blue. It boasts a row of delectable white bone buttons down the front and a broad belt of self material that ends in the back with a most festive knotted fringe.

The skating cap begins in a tight, little velvet turban of the same shade of blue as the suit, and then, tightly anchored by two wool buttons, dashes right off the side of the turban and winds round and round miladi's throat in warmth and beauty and brings up over her left shoulder in a distracting pompon of velvet and wool! The accessories are white buckskin gloves and shoes with black stitching.

The demure young lady in the upper corner is a patriotic skater. Her sweater and cap are of dark blue—and you've guessed it—the angora wool collar and scarf ends are alternate red and white!

Schulenburg One of Germany's Main Operatives On This Coast

Further details of the life of Franz Schulenburg, the German spy and dynamiter who was arrested in San Jose on the fifth of this month following his apprehension in Santa Cruz in a room in the old Santa Cruz brewery building on Market street, show him to be closely allied and under orders from the head of the German secret service at Wilhelmstrasse.

According to San Francisco dispatches yesterday Schulenburg, under directions of William von Brincken, former military attache at the local German consulate, purchased a ton of dynamite at Seattle at the time of the explosion of a barge loaded with munitions in Puget Sound.

Close association between Schulenburg and Franz von Papen, former head of the German secret service in the United States, and Ram Chandra, now on trial in the federal courts charged with violating the neutrality of the United States, is said to exist.

In December, 1914, Schulenburg reported to von Brincken at the German consulate in San Francisco. He volunteered for any kind of service and was referred to Ram Chandra, who furnished him with money to go to Seattle. Schulenburg was instructed to report to the German consul at Seattle, and to buy a ton of dynamite, fifty Maxim silencers and fifty high-power rifles and ample ammunition. He was to leave his purchases near the Canadian border.

Von Papen traveled incognito to Seattle, where he met Schulenburg and gave him $1500. The German agent traveled under the name of Franz Winewski, a Russian. He secured a Russian passport to facilitate a trip through Canada. With the money Schulenburg bought dynamite and guns and ammunition.

In October, 1915, von Brincken sent Schulenburg to New York to report to von Papen. Von Papen told him he had nothing for him, and advised him to go to his hotel in Hoboken. Germans in the employ of von Papen that night entered his room, searched him, took his papers and money and bundled him on to a train, giving him a ticket to San Francisco.

In January, 1917, Schulenburg and another agent, it is said, went to Los Angeles to await the new head of the German secret service in the United States. The men awaited instructions as German agents and to receive supplies to install a high power wireless plant on the west coast of Mexico. They contracted for supplies amounting to $35,000, but the money did not arrive.

Shortly after this, according to Schulenburg, under his old Russian passport he went to Germany and reported to the head of the German secret service at Wilhelmstrasse. He was in Germany three weeks and then landed at Galveston and made his way to southern California. In July he disappeared again and it is believed he went to Mexico.

On December 1 it was learned that he had been in Santa Barbara and had left for Santa Cruz.

62 ADDITIONS NOW

The revival meeting at the Christian church is noted for one thing, and that is the regularity with which additions are received. Every day since the meeting began there have been additions, with one exception. The rain kept many away last night, but there was a good audience. There have been sixty-two additions to date. Many more will doubtless unite before the meeting closes. The subject last night was "The Best Legacy." All present pronounced it one of the best. Subject tonight, "The History of Christianity." Rev. MacDonald will lead the music and sing a solo.

NIGHT AUTO PATROL IS SUCCESS IN PASADENA

PASADENA, Dec. 26.—The local police department has in effect an automobile night patrol that is working successfully. A light touring car is used by two officers in traversing the streets of the residential districts. This service is in addition to the foot and bicycle patrols.

At present the machine is used only half the night, traversing 85 miles in that time, but after the first of the year two more men will be put on and the car will be kept going all night, and travel about 170 miles.

Every 15 minutes its occupants report to the central station by telephone, and they are constantly on watch for the red light flashes from signals in various parts of the city that are a command to the nearest policeman to get in touch with headquarters. The auto patrol frequently is in a position to answer hurry calls quicker than a machine from the central station.

SANTA CRUZ PORTLAND CEMENT GETS BOOST AND GOOD, FAT ORDER

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—The Pacific Portland Cement company, after being turned down by City Engineer O'Shaughnessy, Monday renewed its protest before Auditor Boyle against the award of the contract for cement for Hetch-Hetchy to the Santa Cruz Portland Cement company, says the Chronicle. The substance of the protest is that the probable car shortage in the coming year might make it difficult to give deliveries at the times required.

"The bid of the Santa Cruz Portland Cement company was regular," said the city engineer yesterday. "The price is less than the market price, and the product of the Santa Cruz company has greater reliability."

The specifications call for the delivery of 10,000 barrels at Hetch-Hetchy Junction when the cement may be needed in the Hetch-Hetchy work.
